

Week 1

- Today started my first PESE Lab of 5th semester, and here comes our trainer Ms Anubha Pundir, at the first glance it was like a strict teacher who would ask for each work on time with a strict deadline, when she spoke such fluent english it gave me a hint that she would be a english teacher, with her graduation done in english.

And no I was wrong she had been a science student I can't believe that my guess was wrong. When she Introduced her it was like she had done a lot of things and have many stories to share with us.

Well It was a really nice session that ended with Anubha Maram made us do some meditation to calm and relax our mind. This showed her spirituality, which I have seen very rare in teachers of our college.

Q Can you describe a wow moment you experienced when you first entered college?

One of the unforgettable "wow" moment in this past two and half year happened in the second semester. With just a conversation that we were having with Pramod Sir related to the Role play competition that the department of English is going to conduct.

Pramod Sir motivated all of us to take part in that as this would be a great experience for both teamwork and improving public speaking. I felt like it was a great opportunity, me and my friends decided to form a group. We started practicing for the ~~group~~ role-play and days passed ~~and~~, the Competition day was here. We all were excited, nervous and fix up for this day, the role play begin.

Our chance was third to perform on the stage the first group that came did really well judges were impressed as well. It made me and my teammate/friends really worried how we are going to perform.

Time passed by our chance came, me and my friends gave our best And then came the winner announcement, after week of practice and dedication, our efforts paid off as we delivered a powerful performance, the audience and judges both were impressed. We were thrilled and proud that our team was announced as the winner of the role play competition.
